ABSTRACT

This thesis aim to research about the context of student uniform that deprive rights and freedoms in Thailand. The objective of this thesis is that to criticize the wearing of the university uniform in Thailand by study how the uniform work and how it was driven to be existed here through the history of the uniform, university and also the uniform wearer in the present too. This thesis aim using the theoretical concepts, conceptual view of philosophers and other media to analysis uniform context and the deprivation of liberty in Thailand.

The research result found that the existing of the uniform was maintain from the past governing system. Therefore, currently we still need to wear a uniform in order to organize people in the organization in the frame of the previous system that still remain in this time. The student who wear university uniform wear because they get used to it and cannot be free from the controlling of the uniform even the country has already revoke the uniform. These students who get used to wear uniform still wearing it as before, who wears a university uniform were merged into one with the uniform and surrendered to the uniform without arguments. There are no set questions from who wears due to being dissolved for a long time and become daily routine and under the authority of the uniform was completely directed by the uniform by who wearing the uniform not even realizing it.
